

Timothy J Poulsen

tim@skypanther.com

www.linkedin.com/in/timpoulsen

MISSION

To support my family emotionally and financially while satisfying my inner geek through adventures in technology and science; to better the world and maybe even leave a hint of lasting impression of my time spent here on Earth.

EMPLOYMENT

Skypanther Studios, Inc. — 2003 to present

President: programmer, technology consultant, salesman, accountant, and chief executive

Axzo Press, LLC — 2004 to present

Developmental Editor: author and editor of technology training materials for computer professionals and certification candidates

Element K (formerly Ziff-Davis Education) — 1993 – 2004

Sr. Curriculum Developer: author and editor of technology training materials
Acquisitions Editor: solicit, evaluate, and manage outside contributions

ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Programmer and designer of dozens of web sites for small and medium size businesses. Projects range from CMS-based brochure sites to custom database-driven web applications, to Android and iPhone apps. Portfolio at skypanther.com/portfolio.php

Author of dozens of technology training courses, including CompTIA A+ Certification (5 days of training), CompTIA Linux+ Certification (5 D.O.T), CompTIA Security+ Certification (5 D.O.T), Microsoft Outlook 2010 Basic, Intermediate, and Advanced (combined 3 D.O.T)

Author of articles in PC Magazine, PC Computing magazine, and Sky & Telescope magazine; co-author HTML 3.2 QuickStart, ISBN 1562764934

EDUCATION

State University of New York College at Oswego, 1987, B.S. Meteorology

State University of New York Empire State College, Non-matriculated comp-sci studies

BEYOND WORK

Husband and father of three adorable children

Black belt, Shorin Ryu Karate 2008

Assistant Scoutmaster, Boy Scout Troop 273, Fairport

Member, Rochester Academy of Science, Astronomy Section

Member, Rochester Woodworking Society

Member, New York State Bluebird Society